Action Against Hunger has responded to the earthquake and aftershocks in South Asia by providing immediate assistance to the tsunami victims of Sri Lanka and Indonesia. Initially focused on emergency water and sanitation activities -- constructing latrines, distributing clean water, and collecting bodies -- AAH has since delivered hundreds of metric tons of water-sanitation logistic items, water pumps, tanks and purification equipment, as well as emergency food rations, oral rehydration salts, and high-nutrition biscuits for the displaced communities. In addition to emergency assistance programs, they are working to help the beneficiaries return to their former livelihoods. Finalizing a 2 year recovery	Chronicle of Philanthropy - Mar 14
